

This is Natural Law.

R035-rL- 2 hours

The words “That which you value the most for the common good,” Spirit, and God are used interchangeably in this resource.

The Natural Law is this.

“If one or more of the primary values is present in an experience and the experience does not go against any of the other primary values, you will feel good. If the experience goes against one or more of the primary values, you will feel bad, even if other primary values are present.”

Academic research validates innate needs put into every human being as: relatedness, competence and autonomy.

“The findings have led to the postulate of three innate psychological needs—competence, autonomy, and relatedness which when satisfied yield enhanced self motivation and mental health and when thwarted lead to diminished motivation and well-being.”

Primary values (shown below in bold text) satisfy innate needs (shown in italicized text):

Relatedness* - Doing that which is truly in the best interests of others.

Competence* - Attaining goals or other ends not necessarily preconceived as goals but which become goals once experienced.

Autonomy* - Operating in an area of meaningful expansion for yourself, that is your interiorly preferred work.

It is a Natural Law that all human beings are born with feelings. Our feelings tell us if we are on target, or off target, as a human being. Perhaps the greatest discovery in Natural law ever is that Academic research validates innate needs put into every human being as: relatedness, competence and autonomy. Primary values satisfy innate needs with “amazing convergence.” For the first time, we know why we feel the way we do, when we do, and we know going against primary values leads to diminished motivation and well-being.

Natural Law is engraved in the very depths of human nature, harmonious with the Bible, God’s revealed Word, and harmonious with every religion.

Religion

The schema above shows God as the ultimate goal of life for those who claim to serve Him. The base of the pyramid shows the primary values we hold in common. The middle shows an open space around religion in this sense: religion may define rewards of a religious life in line or out of line with innate needs. No religion has authority to go against innate needs put into us by our Creator, defined as going against the primary values. Innate needs when satisfied yield enhanced self-motivation and mental health and when thwarted lead to diminished motivation and well-being.

(The Old Testament, shared by followers of the Muslim Qur’an, as indicated in the Bible quotes in the chart may imply endorsement of the primary values. Also the Qur’an does speak about Jesus. And Jesus as known in the tradition of his early followers endorsed the innate primary values as the Bible quotes in the chart indicate above. So thru the Old Testament link and through the Jesus link the Qur’an may imply endorsement of the primary values.)
