R121-ac-Mentors

Another in authority may impose directives on you that are at odds with what you are deep down.
   a.   Trust in your own spiritual inner direction.
   b.   Believe in the reliability of your teacher or director, spouse or friend in whom you can have faith.
   c.   Seek one you can encounter in relaxed faith, hope, and love.

The spiritual life develops in and through the whole human life of a person. Growth is a story of grace and a story of human development.
   a.   My life moves along dead end streets, once I have lost my spiritual direction.
   b.   Often such false directives are shared by many who come from the same symbolic universe of goals and values that are promoted within a shared cultural environment.

1. Does anything in Loquate's Domain Theory syllabus of courses offend you? A Mentor can really help.
2. Do you get that Domain Theory is a universal document applicable to all people?
3. Do you understand Domain Theory from the unique way it is presented as a syllabus?
4. Is Domain Theory something that you will undertake on your own time as a volunteer?
5. How motivated are you on a scale on 0 low to 10 high to become a Smart® Ambassador of Community?
6. Who would be a good Mentor?

Any person you trust and is familiar with the course at hand and has experience implementing the course could be a Mentor. More than one person can be a mentor. This is a trust thing. Jeff jeff@loquate.tv 773-621-0863 and Susan susanmdavis30@gmail.com (310) 251-0222 are always available to be a Mentor. You can contact Jeff most Tuesdays 3-5 pm cst.

7. Like a trade school, learning is experiential. Your Mentor affirms your grasp of the materials through relevant resolution stories. Your ideal Mentor knows you, and has experience implementing the R# course you are studying.

The Loquate X factor is "Freedom to live your deepest beliefs in harmony with all." To become a Smart® Ambassador of Community ask your Mentor to help you submit your 2 part documentation to Registrar@Loquate.org.
   •   Your Mentor can use the R122-Mentor Template to help you sign off on any R# course you take.
   •   You regularly attended Work Meets Faith Smart® group meetings. Save your cumulative set of participation feedback documentation for each Smart® group meeting that you attended.
