

Clutter

R124-af

Take me for example. I reflect on the clutter in my life. It is Christmas Eve. I am left with my thought of baby Jesus. What can this possibly mean?

Baby Jesus has no clutter in his life. He is a blank slate. As a baby we have a clean slate. Without even realizing it, every choice we make moves us closer to a habit. Once a habit forms we no longer think about it. That saves time and habitual behavior becomes who we are.

If someone reaches out to a baby in a way the baby, knows, and understands, the baby smiles. But a new born baby has such faith in our trustworthiness. That is their charm. If their outreach is toward you, you coo. Just like the baby.

Baby Jesus is often depicted with his arms outreached. He loves even now at birth. He loves his mother who cares for Him with a secret in her heart. Imagine if Jesus was God, as I do believe. He was not conceived of man alone but was conceived by the power of the Holy Spirit. "My soul doth proclaim the glory of the Lord." He is tiny. Yes. But His love is great. So great it fills the entire world. What will He do next?

Angels on high proclaim "Glory, hallelujah, the Savior is born." Wise men come bearing gifts of Frankincense and Myrrh, Gold too. The three wise men travel from afar guided by a holy night light.

A Shepherd boy sings and plays his tune. The cows and animals in the stable are docile in His presence.

The child is without clutter. St. Francis knew this. He gathered townspeople to re-enact the Sovereign's birth. Sheer joy was the re-enactment. It continues to this day.

The example of Jesus is to have one purpose. Like every baby, to love all before us is to be in a protective bubble of community, grace filled according to the will of Creator God.

Irrespective of your faith beliefs, will you join an outreach, to all of humanity. The outreach is to become a Smart® ambassador of community.

Relatedness.
Competence.
Autonomy.

These are innate needs of every human being. As an Infant with an empty slate, I am motivated toward my own well-being and mental health only if..

I leave clutter behind.

Competence is satisfied by the primary value of attaining goals or other ends, not necessarily preconceived as goals, but which become goals, once experienced.

Relatedness is satisfied by the primary value of doing that which is truly in the best interests of others, including every human being on earth fraught with clutter.

Clutter is the culprit. The ultimate clutter is the use of force to get my way. That would go against relatedness.

Autonomy is satisfied by the primary value of operating in an area of meaningful expansion for myself. In the baby Jesus, that was dying on a cross to save mankind from its clutter.

There is a safe way we can satisfy innate needs together. Loquate, a charity for peace, helps individuals and organizations build community. Join a Work Meets Faith Smart® group.

No matter your personal devotions or public association commitments everyone needs to remove clutter. We never get into differences of belief in our Smart® group. Sharing experience using relevant resolution stories, never advice, is how we remain structurally developmental. We each need our respective Houses of Worship, our devotions, and public associations, more than ever. Our interfaith Smart® group outreach is to bring peace on earth. We only meet 9 times per year, a commitment of less than 4 tenths of one percent of our time.
